

June 11, 2009

Principal gets drenched for cause

Brittany Smith
brittanysmith@lsj.com

It was all fun and games at Windemere Park Charter Academy's field Wednesday as 30 students soaked their principal with water sponges and 625 others, mostly in red uniform shirts, had great seats to watch.

The event was a reward for students who participated in the school's accelerated reading program, which was created by the school's librarian, Karen Rogers. Students in grades first through seventh were in attendance. The 30 sponge-throwing students were selected based on their performance in the program.

Principal Jeff Whipple was the target. It was a bittersweet moment for him, as he is retiring after this school year.

"It's been wonderful being with the kids and families," said Whipple, who has been principal at the school for five years.

---